The Secret of Maple Street

Every Halloween, the children of Maple Street avoided number 13. The old house had been empty for twenty years, and people said a ghost lived there. On one dark Halloween night, twelve-year-old Lily and her little brother Ben decided to find out the truth.

They walked up the creaky steps with a flashlight. Suddenly, they heard a strange sound from the attic. "It's the ghost!" whispered Ben, and his hands began to shake. Lily wasn't sure, so she climbed the stairs slowly.

In the attic, she found an open window and a small, shivering kitten. The wind was blowing the curtains and making the window bang. The kitten had been trapped inside for days. Lily gently picked it up. "There's no ghost," she smiled. "Just a hungry cat."

The next day, the children took the kitten home and named it Shadow. They also told their neighbors the truth, and soon the people of Maple Street stopped being afraid of number 13. Ben learned that some things look scary until you look closely. "Next Halloween," he laughed, "let's find a real ghost!"
